Andi Otto is a composer and performer of electronic music from Hamburg, who is truly living his live acts. On stage, he plays a unique sensor-extended cello bow which he has developed in collaboration with STEIM in Amsterdam.

This instrumental system which he calls Fello allows for gestural performance of the electronically processed sounds of the amplified cello – an additional layer of musical modification that resembles the almost magical flow of playing a theremin.

Andi Otto regularly composes for theatre and dance performances in which he also appears as a performer.
