If the world of today were the dreams of tomorrow – Rostock based german artist Sebastian Geist aka Schlepp Geist delivers the movie soundtrack. The nightyness of his sound is stretched as sugar sweet agravic cloudlessness behind your eyes. His music is ranged by this essential riot as if she lived for ever without beginning somewhere in time. Floats amongst hedonistic thrill of ecstasy and a furnished room with attendance, between Berlin and the Baltic, between

House and House, between twitchy dancefoors and greenyards, between funkyness and passing telephone poles. And no matter how hard we try to get back to the non-dramatic homeland called everday's life Schlepp Geist's music stays.

In 2007 he moved to Berlin for educational reasons and started to take producing much more seriously. From this moment on he also worked on his production skills to take the sound of his tracks to the next level. That should result in live - performances in diferent clubs or at festivals like the gorgeous Fusion-Festival. This „small“ sense of achievement lets him never stop work- ing on improving his skills, to get unusual and fancy tracks out of his studio.
